

MORRIS FOR MAYOR

Did you know that Capilano University's problems are not limited to a massive funding shortfall?

Did you know that a very high percentage of Cap U students are housing challenged? Until a recent visit by Brittany Barnes, Cap U Student Union President, I was unaware that students are sleeping in their cars in parking lots, or living in tents up above the North Van City graveyard, in the bush.

Others, the lucky ones, share low-cost rental housing units, located throughout the City, and elsewhere. These students, like so many of our elderly community members, worry about the affects rampant redevelopment is having on the availability of low-cost housing for their needs.

The City must ensure we preserve these valuable low-cost rental solutions. Without them, we put our Cap U student population in harm's way.
